LOCAL MAN CHARGED WITH BOOZE SELLING

William Abel Held for Court Yesterday Afternoon On the Charge of the Illegal Sale of Liquor, By Squire J. B. Smith

CRIPPLE GIVES EVIDENCE

Who Trades a Stolen Watch, It Is Alleged, to Abel For Liquor—In Default of Bail Abel Will Be Taken to Jail Today, Probably This Afternoon

William Abel was given a hearing before Squire J. B. Smith yesterday afternoon on a charge of the unlawful sale of liquor. Abel was held for court by the Squire in the sum of $1,000 bail, and in default will be taken to the county jail today.

Abel is the same man who was the defendant in one of the most unique cases of its character ever thrashed out in the courts of this county. It was all over a copper wash boiler, in which it was asserted that he was using for the purpose of making moonshine. His defense was that the boiler was used for laundry purposes. The boiler was taken into court, but the jury, owing to its construction, did not believe the defense of Abel, and rendered a verdict of guilty of the charge of the illegal sale of liquor. Abel was sentenced to eight months in the Allegheny County workhouse, but was released on bail in the sum of $1500 pending an appeal which was made in his behalf to the State Superior court.

It is said that the evidence in the present holding of Abel for court was given by a cripple, who is alleged to have stolen a watch, gave it to another man, who traded the timepiece to Abel for liquor.

Libellant Directed to Pay the Respondent In Action for Divorce

In the divorce suit of Major S. Paris, of Donora, against Carrie Paris, in the matter of the petition of the libellant to withdraw his action, and rule on respondent to show cause why his prayer should not be granted, the court has handed down a decree.

It is directed that the libellant pay the respondent $3 a week from June 8, 1924, until August 25, 1924, and the costs in the suit. In compliance with this order the libellant will be permitted to withdraw his action in divorce.

In the partition suit of Clarence Adams against Owen Adams, et al., the court has handed down a decree.

MRS. E. M. CHALFANT PASSES TODAY AT THE AGE OF 77

Mrs. Eliza M. Chalfant, aged 77 years, widow of the late James F. Chalfant, highly respected resident of CharleROI for the past twenty-six years, died this morning at 11:30 o'clock at her late home in 311 Meadow avenue, following an illness of a few days. Mrs. Chalfant, who had enjoyed fairly good health despite her advanced years, was suddenly stricken Saturday, her condition growing steadily worse until death this forenoon.

Mrs. Chalfant was born in Greene county, Pennsylvania, near Whiteley, and resided there until moving to CharleROI with her family in 1893. Her husband, James F. Chalfant, died in 1907. The deceased was a charter member of the First Baptist church of this place.

There survive two sons, Joseph R. Chalfant, of CharleROI, and Floyd Chalfant, of Beaver, Pa.; one step-daughter, Mrs. William Albright of Brownsville, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will probably be held Friday afternoon at the late home, followed by interment in the Brownsville cemetery.

REPORT BY THE MOVIES

The annual report of the Washington Chamber of Commerce will be given this year in the form of slides and moving pictures at the annual meeting Friday night. All these moving pictures will be taken in Washington, of subjects specially selected. Just as soon as the weather clears enough the work will be started. This is a change from the verbal annual report given heretofore, and will prove, it is hoped, both interesting and instructive.

For the first time in the history of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, great interest is being taken in the election of the board of directors, and a warm campaign is in progress. There are 24 candidates from whom to fill seven places, and the election promises to be close. Ballots have been mailed to all members and the polls will be open in the office of the secretary from 7:30 until 9 o'clock Friday evening. During the voting the annual meeting will be held, and the pictures shown.

Immediately following the election, the board of directors will organize and elect officers for the ensuing year. These are a president, two vice presidents, treasurer and secretary.

Hard Lines For Mon City "Night Hawks"

The night force of the Monongahela police department, under the direction of Sergeant W. R. Hughes, is working under instruction to arrest all suspicious characters and "night hawks" who are found on the streets of that city after midnight.

Any persons apprehended on the streets after 12 o'clock at night will be stopped and asked to account for themselves. Arrests will be made if a satisfactory explanation is not given, and the suspect arraigned on a charge of loitering. Police of Monongahela are taking drastic action to remove from the streets of that city a harmful element, the order resulting as a sequence to several robberies that have occurred recently in that city.

A careful watch is being maintained on the business section for suspicious characters, and during the week night patrolmen have made several arrests. Valley police were notified a short time ago to be on the lookout for a band of crooks and burglars who recently invaded McKeesport, Clairton, and Duquesne.

COUPLES WHO DO NOT LIVE IN AMITY

Cathryn A. Lynch, of Washington, has filed a suit in divorce against George C. Lynch, now living in East Liberty, Pittsburgh, in which she charges him with infidelity. She names Maude Donaldson in the libel. They were married June 22 at Cumberland, Md., and lived for a time in Duquesne, in Homewood and in California state.

Manila Burgess of Washington, in a libel filed against Arthur Burgess, seeks a decree in divorce on the grounds of indignities to the person.

Della Norris, of Washington, by her father, H. C. Stagers, has filed a suit against William Gentre Norris, in which she charges him with desertion. They were married April 2, 1924, and lived together until June 23, 1924. William N. Cox of Washington, seeks a separation from Ida B. Cox on the grounds of desertion. They were married October 9, '16, and lived together until June 27, 1922.

In the suit of Mary Bergmasco against John Bergmasco, of Elrama, he has filed an answer to the rule issued on him to show cause why he should not pay her alimony and counsel fees. He avers that under an agreement with his wife he is not compelled to support her; that by this agreement she was to have possession of their child; to keep and provide for it, and when she could not do so, to return the child to him. The couple now have a suit pending involving the possession of the child.

In the suit of John H. Yoders, ent has filed a suit for alimony and counsel fees. She says she has no funds to fight the suit, and that her husband has two large farms near West Alexander, and she is worth $25,000. The suit was filed on the 1st.

The train of seven cars was proceeding slowly because of the overhanging cables and wires following the river. The train was stopped by the river.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 1.—Flood conditions were prevalent in many sections in northeastern Pennsylvania today following the heaviest and most prolonged rainstorm on record here. Property damage will run into many thousands of dollars and transportation will be hampered.

Nine deaths in the anthracite region during the past 48 hours were directly attributable to the storm and the resulting floods and slides. An aged woman was drowned at Miners Mills, near here, when a small bridge was washed away, and a man was electrocuted in Wyoming when he came in contact with a fallen power wire.

The Susquehanna river was out of its banks here today, flooding the lowlands along the west side and forcing scores of families to leave their homes. Wilkes-Barre's new $500,000 recreational center, Kirby Park, was inundated. In the Brookside section 40 families had to flee their homes during the night.

Damage to crops and farm property will be extensive, reports here today show, much livestock being drowned and many crops ruined. Roads were blocked by landslides and fallen trees and many anthracite mines were forced to close because of flooding.

Several bridges, including one railroad bridge, were reported washed away and thousands of feet of track was damaged. The Lehigh Valley railroad was apparently the worst hit, traffic on the main line and several branches being at a standstill. Every effort was being made today to repair the damage.

Fishing creek, a tributary of the Susquehanna river, which runs through the central part of Columbia county, was slowly receding today, leaving a trail of ruin in its wake. The town of Benton was digging its self out of the mud following one of the worst floods in its history. Scores of families in that section were marooned in the upper stories of their homes for many hours.

Communications were hampered throughout the region.

Harrisburg, Oct. 1.—The Susquehanna river was expected to reach the 15-foot stage today, menacing property in the lowlands drained by the river and its tributaries in Central Pennsylvania.

Reports coming here today from nearby towns indicate many families were leaving their homes to escape the rising flood waters. Farm lands were inundated in Stoney Creek, Clark's Creek, and other valleys in the river basin.

Many homes were flooded in the Lykens valley and the Reading railroad was submerged in a dozen or more sections in this vicinity.

Highways were under a foot of water in some places and summer cottages along the river were found nearly covered or swept away by the raging waters.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 1.—Damage to crops, highways, and other property in North Carolina from flood waters caused by two weeks of continued rains, was several million dollars today, with rising rivers threatening still further destruction.

Additional flood warnings were broadcast by the federal weather bureau as rivers in eastern and central parts of the state continued to rise, threatening to inundate thousands of acres of tobacco and cotton.

New York, Oct. 1.—A track wash-out caused the derailment of the locomotive, baggage car, and two Pullman sleepers of a special section of the Adirondack and Montreal Express a half mile from Tupper Lake, small Adirondack village early today. Meagre reports here said only one person, a fireman, was seriously injured. New York Central officials today causing damage of nearly $125,000. The river had passed the 15 foot stage at noon and was going higher. The huge timbers of the trestle partly built, crashed into the waters and were swept away by the river.

ATTEND BANQUET IN HONOR OF E. W. HILL

Approximately twenty CharleROI Rotarians attended the Inter-City banquet given in honor of Everett W. Hill, president of the Rotary International, by the Pittsburgh club last evening. The banquet was held at the Hotel Monongahela, and was attended by more than 600 Rotarians, representatives of the clubs from four states, heard Mr. Hill speak of the ideals and ultimate purposes of the business men's organization. B. K. Elliott, chairman of the reception committee, acted as toastmaster. The other speakers were Anthony W. Smith of Pittsburgh, past governor of the Thirty-third district; Charles Simeral of Steubenville, governor of the Twenty-second Rotary district; and Emmett Bailey of Oil City, Thirty-third district head.

Effort For More Gas Is Being Made

Considerable drilling in both new and old gas fields has been started or is under way in the community surrounding Monongahela, with every gas company of Monongahela participating in an effort to secure a greater production of gas for the coming winter.

Thomas Bickerton is drilling two wells in the Mingo district near Crookham in a field which heretofore has been highly productive. R. E. Byers, president of the West Monongahela and the Bellewood Gas company, is drilling a well in Mingo valley. A well put down by the above concern recently at Riverview car stop on the Gibbons property, came in with a good flow of gas. The Citizens Gas company is drilling a well on the Colvin tract out Dry Run. The Philadelphia Gas company is drilling a well on the Flack farm in Somerset township, and the Randolph interests are progressing with their drilling on the Daniels farm. John Snee and Ed. Bettle, of Elizabeth, are drilling wells in the Bunola field in Forward township just across the river from Monongahela. Several good wells have been struck here and additional wells will likely be put down very soon.

Elizabeth interests have taken a lease on an extensive tract of the Pittsburgh Coal company property at the mouth of Mingo creek and drilling will begin at once. It is indicated that Carroll and Fallowfield townships will also, be the scene of extensive well drilling within a few weeks as a number of tracts in each township have been leased by the Peoples Gas company of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 1.—Two robbers were routed in Library, near Castle Shannon, early today when they were fired on while removing merchandise from the store.

After they had stolen $200 worth of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and other merchandise, from the Federal Supply Company store, the pair went to Kramer's establishment in an automobile. Kramer, who lives 100 feet from the store, was awakened by the noise the men made, carrying loot from the place and switched on the store lights.

BANQUETS ARE TO FEATURE THE MEET

MANY PEOPLE PAY RESPECTS TO HEADQUARTERS

Many people, both ladies and gentlemen, are paying their respects to the Republican headquarters on the second floor of the Bank of CharleROI and Trust Company today. All who visit the rooms are given the beautiful Coolidge-Dawes pins, and the enthusiasm and interest in the candidates of the heads of the ticket, is noticeable.

This afternoon Congressman Henry W. Temple and J. Edgar Masters of Washington, Claude E. Townner of Monongahela, candidate for assembly, and other politicians and prominent Republicans will be present. Mr. Temple to remain for the evening.

There will be no speaking of any kind during this, the "House-warming" day, but a general interchange of greetings and the forming of acquaintances.

EDITOR QUILTS POST TODAY

Miss Eliza Wilson, for 20 years the editor and manager of the Monongahela Republican, relinquished her journalistic duties today, coincident with the taking over of the plant by Claude E. Townner, and others, of Monongahela. Miss Wilson will take up other work.

Miss Wilson is entering the political game, by way of diversion, and seeks the office of county poor director for Washington county. The experience gained by the lady in the journalistic field, well equips her for the duties incumbent of a director, and it is said that she will make a strenuous campaign for election.

MAN MAY LOSE AN EYE AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Harry Jacobs of Monongahela, driving a Ford coupe towards Donora last night at 11:45 o'clock on the Webster-Monessen road, was badly injured when the Ford ran into a Hupmobile coupe, owned and driven by Robert Springer, manager of the Hooper & Long shoe store of Monessen, going in the opposite direction, resulting in the Ford going over a four-foot embankment and turning turtle on the railroad track. Jacobs was badly cut about the face, and when examined at the Memorial hospital, where he was taken shortly after the accident, it was found that the eye ball of his left eye had been severed and in all probability the man will lose the sight of the member.

Springer escaped without injury, and his car was but slightly damaged. The Ford was completely demolished.

Jacobs, it is said, was driving under the influence of liquor.

Dinner Sessions Will Lighten the More Serious Business of the State Sunday School Convention to Be Held in Washington

DATES ARE OCTOBER 8-10

President Percy L. Craig Will Entertain the State Directors And the State Field Staff On Next Wednesday Evening By the Giving of a Dinner

Banquets will lessen the tension incident to the State Sunday School convention to be held in Washington, October 8-10.

The first of these will be the business men's dinner at noon Wednesday, the first day of the convention, at the George Washington hotel. At the close of the dinner, for which any business or professional man who wishes may make a reservation through the Washington Chamber of Commerce, there will be brief addresses, one by Dr. M. A. Honline, of Pasadena, Calif., on "Christian Education, the Solution to Economic Problems."

At 5:30 that evening, Percy L. Craig, of New Castle, state president, will give a dinner at the hotel in honor of the state directors and among the guests will be the state field staff, county presidents and other invited guests.

At 12:15, Thursday, October 9, in the First Christian church, under the auspices of the Christian Education division, a teacher training banquet will be held. The Rev. Dr. George P. Atwell, of the Second Presbyterian church, is the committee chairman for this division, and Dr. M. Hadwin Fisher, member of the state staff, in charge of Christian education, is expected to be present and make an address. It is thought that fully 200 persons will take part in this teacher training dinner rally.

Thursday evening, there will be two dinner sessions. One for the Young People's division, Mrs. Agnes Van Kirk, committee chairman, and Miss Esther I. Williams on the state staff, and one for the Children's division, a supper and story hour, Mrs. W. A. Lockhart, Houston, is chairman of the committee and Emma G. Fenn on the state staff. The former group will dine at 5:30 at the Third Presbyterian church, and the latter at 5:45 at the First M. E. church.

An interesting, but necessarily exclusive event of the noon hour Friday will be the dinner of the World Pilgrim Association, being arranged by George W. Penniman, general secretary of the Allegheny County Sunday School association. Members of the Pilgrim Association are persons who have attended one or more of the World Sunday School conventions, which have been held at Washington, Jerusalem, Zurich, Rome, Tokio and Glasgow. It is said there were 50 Pennsylvanians at Glasgow the past summer. About 200 persons are expected at this dinner.

Mr. Penniman is president of the World's Pilgrim Association. The dinner will be served at the First Christian church.

"Pep" O'Brien Takes Brady's Place Against DeMarco Tomorrow

Jimmie Brady is hurt again, and there will be no Brady-DeMarco in the tomorrow night in McKeesport. The show has not been called off but Brady will not appear. He was to have fought in Johnstown last week and after going there was summoned home to Detroit on a business matter. On his way home, he bumped a truck with his automobile, and was hurt so that it will be several weeks before he can box. He immediately notified the Majestic Club, under whose auspices he was to have fought DeMarco tomorrow at the Fallsides rink. Matchmaker McGirr was fortunate in securing Pepp O'Brien, of Scranton, to replace him.

O'Brien has met a lot of good men, and ought to put up an interesting bout against the local boy. Pep has fought Dick Conlon twice, meeting him at Johnstown about six weeks ago, and at Ebensburg last Saturday night. He has also met Lew Tindler, Joe Tiptitz, Cloney Tait, Jimmie Goodrich, Teddy Meyers, Mike Mitchell and a flock of others.

The remainder of the card will stand as originally arranged, with Jack Kelly, of McKeesport, and Sotry Rabburn, of Youngstown, O., clashing in the semi-final; Jack Walker, of Braddeck, and Ray Johnson, of Irwin, fighting in the second round, and John Sullivan of the Tube City, and Sandy Tomaskey, of Wilmerding, fighting in the opener, which starts at 8 o'clock.

Long Pedigrees. Royalty, as in the Harlequin chart which traces Queen Elizabeth's descent from Adam, is not alone in claiming long pedigrees. Not only of a former town clerk of Burton-on-Trent that worth is descended as thirty-seventh in descent from Alfred the Great. Azam, a distinguished French family, the Magons (an Admiral Magon was killed at Trafalgar) shows a pedigree deriving from Marco, the brother of Hannibal.

An Italian nobleman, the Marchese Esposito, traces his descent to the Indian monarch who fought against Alexander the Great. Real "Robinson Crusoe". Alexander Selkirk was an adventurer, born in Largo, Scotland, in 1676. He was a skillful seaman and made several voyages to the South Sea, in one of which having quarreled with his commander, he was put ashore on the island of Juan Fernandez with a few supplies. Here he lived alone for four years and four months when he was rescued by Capt. Wood Rogers. He returned to England in 1711, and is said to have given his papers to Defoe, who from them, wrote the story of "Robinson Crusoe". Selkirk died on the ship Weymouth in 1723.

WALKER TO DEFEND HIS TITLE TONIGHT AT PHILADELPHIA

Jimmy Walker will defend his title of world's welterweight champion against Bobby Barrett in Philadelphia tonight, the contest having been postponed from last evening on account of rain. Contrary to various reports to the effect that the match will be fought on catchweights, Walker weighed in yesterday at 146½ and Barrett at the welter limit of 147 pounds.

While the champion will be at least a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting, Barrett is entitled to serious regard as he carries a knockout wallop in his busy fists. Judged on the showing of Walker and Barrett against Lew Tindler this year the work of the Clifton Heights boy does not suffer in the comparison.

PENT-UP FEELING OF WEEKS TO BURST FORTH IN CAPITAL

The Nation's capital continues to get a kick out of baseball. After the first bout of the recent Monday, the capital city attempted to gain composure but without success. The attitude of the city over its first pennant might be summed in the words of a grizzled old fan: "Well, George, we lived to see it."

Scoreboards didn't function yesterday. Even the youngster with his school books hardly paused in front of a bulletin board to learn the result of the Senators last encounter with Boston, and the Red Sox 13 to 1 victory made no impression.

For years the capital's populace has been called upon thousands of times to furnish the proverbial "banks of humanity" needed for a parade, and whether Washington wanted to or not the law of curiosity always forced the city to turn out to Pennsylvania avenue's side lines to cheer every time a band started to wandering from the scene movement toward the White House.

But today for about the first time in history, Washington will turn out for a celebration all its own—ter more than 20 years of trying it has what it wanted—a pennant, and it is also going to get a chance to see Walter Johnson in a world series game. And so today will be Washington's day of days as Tuesday night was its night of nights.

Simply Couldn't

Dorothy, aged five, had been given a pretty blue silk sash and the first day she wore it she was constantly running to her mother to have it tied. "Was, Dorothy," said her mother. "This makes the fifth time I've tied your sash for you today. You must learn to do it yourself."

But how can I, mamma, replied the little miss, when I'm standing alone in the front of the class?

GLOOM AND GLARE MENACE TO SIGHT

Elimination of gloom and glare in the home by the teaching of the proper use of light is the object of the Home Lighting Contest, which is being held among school children in the United States and Canada.

It has long been known that lighting in the home is an important matter, as it affords not only personal convenience and happiness but eyesight and health. The rules that govern good lighting are simple and definite yet very few persons know the fundamentals of this problem. This is shown by the fact that 25 per cent of school children of the country have defective vision, which is due partially to improper lighting in the home.

In many homes that are considered well lighted today these two evils known as gloom and glare are present. Many persons have stopped reading from discomfort to the eyes or on account of getting a headache which becomes so bad that they cannot fix their attention on the book or paper. By this time damage is done to the eye because it does not come to rest.

Gloom and glare in the home will be permanently injured if this does not happen often.

Gloom in the home, however, if much reading is done, will cause this to happen often and therefore precaution must be taken to make the lighting proper and eliminate gloom.

Glare is just as bad as gloom but it is not often that too much light is available to make glare. Lights in the home should always be shaded and a person should never look directly at a lamp bulb.

How to overcome the problem of gloom and glare in the home will be learned by the children entering the Home Lighting Contest. They will have a chance to win valuable prizes and at the same time save their eyesight.

Took Years to Write

Noah Webster began his preparation for his American Dictionary of the English Language in 1807, and published it in 1828. Previous to 1807 he had published a speller and a "Compendious Dictionary" both of which were probably helpful in the new undertaking. The American dictionary contained 12,000 more words and about 40,000 more definitions than had appeared in any English dictionary published before his.

The wheat harvest usually begins in June in California, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Virginia, Kentucky, Kansas, Utah and Missouri; in July in Oregon, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Washington, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, New York, New England and Upper Canada; in August in North and South Dakota, Manitoba and Lower Canada.

The Cowboys of Asia

The Burats, a peculiar tribe of Mongolians, dwelling near Balkal lake, on the northern border of the Gobi desert, are known as the "cowboys of Asia." Like the traditional American cowboy they are expert riders and spend most of their time on horseback. The Burat horse has great powers of endurance and always there is great attachment between master and animal.

Anything for Profit

A rich Amsterdam burgher was brought before the council of the states general in 1673. He was accused of supplying war material to the English, notwithstanding the fact that his country was at war with England. "Messieurs," he told the judges, "there was profit in my venture, and for profit I'd sail my ships through hell."

THE YOUNGEST MANAGER WINS FOR WASHINGTON

BY HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor.)

New York, Oct. 1.—Cases of personal magnetism and inspiring leadership have been common long in college football. Perhaps it is that a football captain has more opportunity to demonstrate the effect of his powers of leadership than a baseball captain or a hockey captain.

Mac Aldrich, captain of the Yale football team in 1922, was one of the greatest captains a great football university ever had. There have been others just as capable and as magnetic in other universities. Aldrich is just picked as a type.

When he led his team on the field in the huge Yale Bowl there was something about him that made his presence felt in all the stands. There was something about his spirit when he slapped the linemen on the backs as they were defending their goal line that chased thrills up and down the neck of the most blasé spectator.

It did when Red Grange was in the back field and when the big opportunity arrived Grange went in and the team became inspired.

This may seem to have very little to do with the American League pennant race, but it had everything to do with the Washington Senators.

Young Buck Harris, twenty-eight years old, the most youthful manager in baseball put something into a promising club the lack of which had kept it from more distinguished successes.

When Harris was appointed manager of the club last winter it was breezed around the circuit that Clarke Griffith named him because he could not get any one else to take the job, that he could get Buck for a small salary and get Buck to do everything he told him.

It had been common talk that, when Griffith had given up the active field management of the Senators to spend his time in the executive office he still insisted upon having his say about the management of the team. "He experimented more with managers than any other owner in the league and it was generally regarded that he never would have a winning team until he ceased to interfere with the manager."

Griffith always denied this and he insisted that in naming young Harris to handle the team that he had only the purpose of appointing the best man fitted for the position.

Timidity Has No Place Among Arabs of Desert

Bravery is the great outstanding characteristic of the Arab. His judgment of what constitutes cowardice is relentless and terrible. As soon as a man is proved a coward the tribal poet laureate makes a song about him magnifying his fault and ridiculing him. If the victim is unmarried no woman will consider him, as the song of his cowardice endures forever in the tribe. If he is already married his wife or wives are permitted by tribal law (and by Mohammedanism) to return to their fathers. The men, too, cease to associate with the coward and he becomes an outcast and a pariah. To no other tribe can he turn for shelter, and almost invariably suicide is his lot.

Above everything the Arab must prove bravery in the eyes of his women folk. An Arab man's arms are invariably covered with circular scars. These are relics of his childhood and are the result of his proving his worthiness to some childhood sweetheart, his method being to stand in front of the object of his adoration and smile, while he allows pieces of red hot charcoal to burn him.

The Homing Instinct

Do you know those distressing people who, as soon as they start on a holiday, begin to worry about coming home?

I met one in the train the other day. She was being "seen off" by a friend, and this was the burden of her conversation.

"I suppose I can't reserve my seat for coming home? What a bother! But I shall send my luggage in advance."

"I shall wear my blue serge costume for coming home in. I hope it will be a fine day, I hate coming home in the rain."

"I mustn't lose the return half of my ticket; and I'll ask about the time of the train for coming back as soon as I arrive, to make sure."

"Well, goodbye for the present, dear. I'm quite looking forward to coming back."—Windsor Magazine.

Saved by Mother's Spirit

One evening, a short time after my mother died, I was walking along a lonely road near our home when a young man approached and asked the way to a certain street. As we were both going the same way we walked along together until we came to the crossroads. I stopped to give him further directions. Suddenly he seized me and tried to force me into the tall bushes which bordered the road. I struggled frantically, but he pulled me to the ground and was dragging me backward. Suddenly I felt my mother's presence beside me, although I saw nothing. Just then my assailant looked up. Without a word he dropped me and ran down the road and out of sight as fast as he could go.—Chicago Journal.

DRANES CLAIM SITE OF NATION'S CAPITAL

Woman Says Documents Show Title to Tract

Washington.—A claim for property in Maryland and the District of Columbia worth hundreds of millions of dollars, based upon an old English grant, is about to be made to the government of the United States. The property in question includes all of Washington, all of Prince Georges county, Maryland, adjacent to the capital, and other parcels of land. The claim will be made by Mrs. Nellie Drane Pascoe on behalf of herself and hundreds of other Dranes throughout the country. Mrs. Pascoe called at the White House to give a chest of California fruit to President and Mrs. Coolidge on behalf of a packing concern of that state, but she came to Washington also, she explained, to consult attorneys regarding her claim to the nation's capital.

Mrs. Pascoe said that just before her father died he told her of the possibility of her becoming immensely wealthy and gave her documents showing that what are now the District of Columbia and Prince Georges county were at one time the property of James Anthony Drane II, who came to America with Lord Baltimore's party in 1634.

One of the papers set forth that this Drane bought land and settled in Prince Georges county, near what is now Beltsville, Md. The exact acreage is not known, but it was large, as it extended south from Beltsville to Bladensburg, Md., and was a part of the ten-mile square now known as Washington, D. C.

It also extended five miles north to White Oak, in Montgomery county, Maryland, and west ten miles to what is now known as Sligo, Montgomery county.

Just how the land got out of James Anthony Drane's possession Mrs. Pascoe and her relatives do not know, but they believe that "squatters" took it. If she can establish her right to it, she said, she believes the government will buy it back from her.

"Of course, I haven't much chance of getting it," said Mrs. Pascoe, "but I am going to investigate until I determine the exact situation. I have engaged a lawyer in California."

Trees Grown in China

Resist Chestnut Blight
Washington.—Thrilling stories of adventure and interesting scientific discoveries have been reported to the National Geographic Society by Joseph F. Rock, discoverer of the chaulmogra tree that yields a leprosy-combating oil, and leader of the society's expedition into Yunnan, a vast and little explored province in southwestern China.

Mr. Rock, a well-known plant authority, has just returned to Washington and, in narrating his experiences, tells of finding in Yunnan aboriginal tribes who still practice religious ceremonies that predate the introduction of Buddhism, and the discovery of a blight-resisting chestnut tree, which, it is hoped will aid in restoring the diseased chestnut timber crop in the United States.

The explorer brought back from the wilds of the Chinese province some 1,700 specimens of birds, 500 mammal specimens and more than 60,000 plants. He also came into possession of books used by the Nahu, or Moso, priests, containing ancient writing in picture form. The books also antedate Buddhism in China and Tibet and include a story of a great flood.

Discover Skeletons of Men of Stone Age

Krasnoyarsk.—Russian archeologists excavating near here have unearthed several human bodies belonging to the Stone age, a number of prehistoric mammoths, dinosaurs, bisons, gigantic stags and more than 750 stone and bone implements, ornaments and weapons of the prehistoric era.

One of the human skeletons found by the explorers is believed to be at least 17,000 years old.

The expedition was undertaken two years ago with a view toward fixing the home of the prehistoric man in Siberia and is working under the direction of Professors Auerbach and Sosnovsky, distinguished Russian archeologists.

Divorced 5 Years, Aged Couple Rewed

Los Angeles, Cal.—Divorced five years ago after forty years of married life, Hans and Caroline Erickson were remarried the other day by Superior Judge Thompson.

After the couple, each of whom is past sixty years of age, were divorced Hans came to California. He settled down in Pasadena. One by one their four grown children followed their father and made their home in the Crown City.

Three months ago the mother came to visit her children. The old love was rekindled and Erickson, she shyly told Judge Thompson, began a courtship. Then the happy pair sought the services of a magistrate to re-marry them.

The bride was given away by Lew Head of Pasadena.

FOOT HEALTH TALKS

How Poorly Shaped Stockings Injure the Foot

Have you heard that stockings play a part in injury to the feet? Or that a child's stockings should be selected with this thought in mind? In this issue of foot orthopedics and author of books on the human foot calls attention to the common phase of neglected foot hygiene.

By WILLIAM M. SCHOLL, M. D.

Almost everyone has experienced at some time or another the agony of being compelled to wear stockings, possibly of wool or other material, which has become badly shrunken. You recall how very uncomfortable and annoying they were to the feet, until, at last, through the pressure and expansion of the feet, the yarn yielded. I have frequently noticed this in my practice, where mothers are compelled to stretch and pull the stocking in order to draw it over the infant's chubby foot and leg. Happily, in the case of very young infants, the first little socks are usually loose enough to allow free motion of the toes.

Great care should be taken from the first wearing of socks or stockings, beginning with the child. For children, the stockings in summer should be made of fine white cotton or silk, and wool. In winter they may be made of a light material, but should be made to cling to the foot but not so tight as to disturb the natural little motions of the baby's feet. These little motions mean much in the development of the muscles of the lower limbs and should not be interfered with. There are several ways in which the baby develops itself for later walking. Extreme care should be taken in having the stocking sufficiently long and wide at the toes.

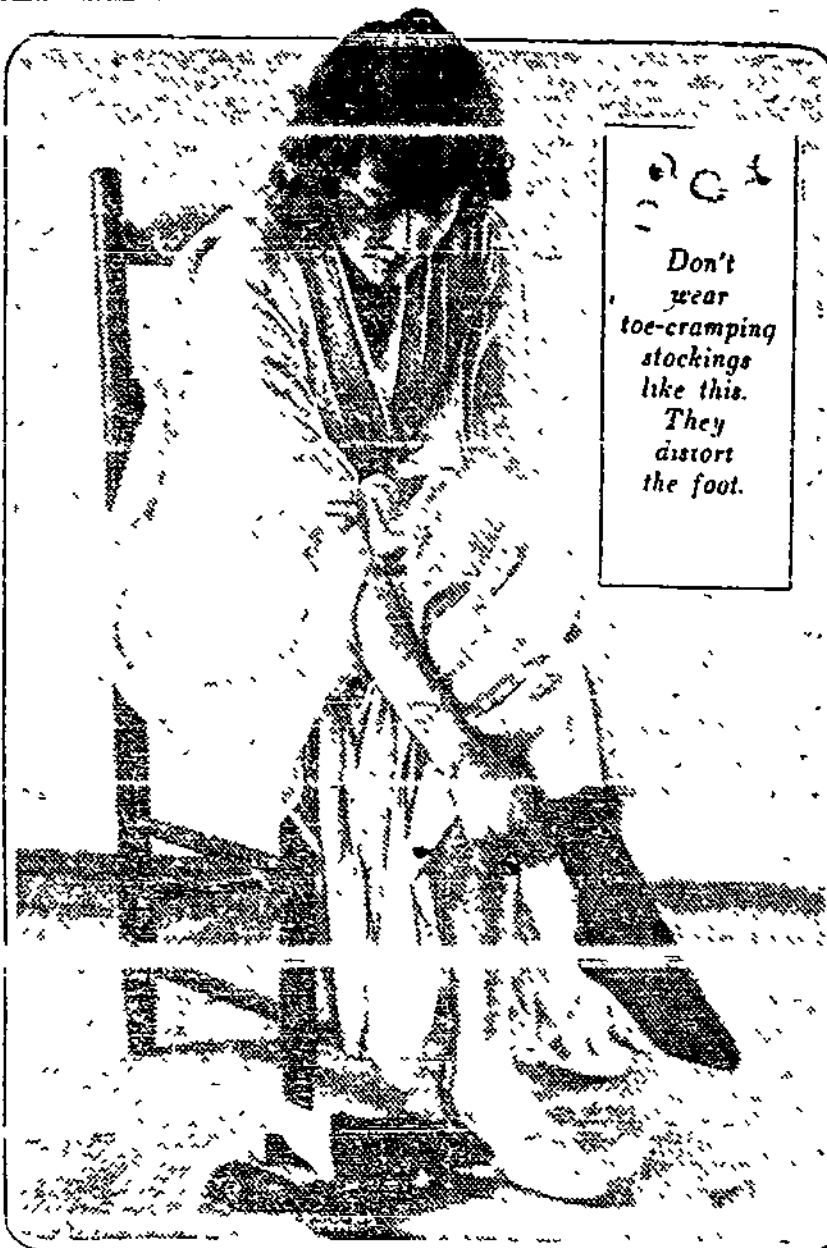

In adults the result of the early wearing of short, pointed toe hosiery may be found in such distortions as hammer toes, bunions and flat foot.

Frequently one finds a patient whose shoes are well fitted, but whose foot actions are restricted by the pointed toe short hose. Among women this is very common where the combination hose supporters are worn, as the action of walking and body motion has a tendency to draw the stocking tight around the foot and toes. Also among most women and children walking and stepping tend to draw the stocking tight about the foot, just as one works the fingers of a glove over the hand.

People whose feet are ailing should be especially careful as to their stockings. In the mechanical treatment of hallux valgus, which is a distortion of the great toe at the joint, of hammer toes, and contracted toes, extreme care must be observed by the practitioner in giving advice to the patient as to hosiery.

A most practical and ingenious design of type of stocking which can be worn with a greater degree of comfort and has the greatest value in preserving the natural motions of the foot is knitted over a model or form, which permits its being worn on either right or left foot. Being almost square but with sufficient tapering to overcome any extreme fullness the full and natural movements of the toes are permitted. This style has been used by the author in his many years of practice with success. It has many advantages and a wide range of usefulness.

Here are some requirements for the stocking, especially if one is suffering from foot ailments, weakness, and pains. A stocking should be made of a smooth weave, free from wrinkles, seams, etc. It should be one half inch longer than the foot; not too long or too large as this will form wrinkles and may cause blisters. If the feet are tender the toe part should be made of a soft undyed yarn. If your feet perspire excessively never wear fancy dyed stockings. Never wear fancy dyed hosiery if you have blisters or abrasions on your feet. Dust the inside of the stocking with an antiseptic foot powder; it has a corrective action on the skin.

Don't wear toe-cramping stockings like this. They distort the foot.

PREROGATIVE OF CLERGY.

McKees Rocks, a suburb of Pittsburgh, has had a reputation for immorality for some time, largely undeserved, brought about through virtue of the fact that in the early days of the town horse races were pulled off there at which there was more or less gambling, and probably selling of pools. However, the McKees Rocks of yesterday and today are vastly different entities, in that while there are derelicts in the borough, McKees Rocks is still populated with many as fine people as enjoy the sunshine of the Great Jehovah.

The borough has a Methodist preacher in its midst who says the town is a modern Gomorrah; that the bootleggers reign supreme; that the police fail of their duty, if not actually allied with the bootleggers in their devilishness, and that the burgess admits he can't control the situation. In a sermon he is reported to have said that if he were burgess for 24 hours, he would "clean up." Burgess C. M. Christiansen offered to give the reverend gentleman a chance to see if he could "make good," but it was found that he could not "officiate" lawfully.

The question arises is a minister of the gospel in his sphere of usefulness in making charges and counter-charges of immorality unless he steps to the front with indubitable proof? Should he make charges minus substantiation?

Here in Charlevoi we often hear the statement made that the borough is overrun with bootleggers, and yet we have heard of no minister of the gospel here making grave charges against the burgess, the police, or anyone in authority, saying that it is "rotten" here and he could "clean up" if given the chance. At any rate, it is the province of minister of the gospel or private citizen to make information in lawlessness; not simply talk sensationally. And it is also the duty and the province of the officers of the law to make arrests without fear or favor if there be law-breakers in Charlevoi.

The willingness of Burgess Christiansen of McKees Rocks to turn over the reins to the Rev. Travis for a day—does this mean that he intends to resign? Public authority is not lightly transferred. The preacher would have no authority in the premises only in the case of appointment in the burgess' resignation. If the burgess should resign would the minister be appointed in his stead, and would the police resign following the appointment? The chances seem to favor the town running along in the even tenor of its way—unless perchance the Rev. Travis comes to the front and produces evidence to substantiate his charges—then, maybe, the burgess and the officers of the law will feel impelled to resign through public sentiment.

MEANS MUCH TO VOTERS.

The establishment of Republican headquarters in the Bank of Charlevoi & Trust Company building, means much to the voters of the borough. It will mean solidification of their ranks, and the prompting on the part of both men and women to exercise the prerogative of casting their ballots at the all-important presidential election in November. For, it is all important, that the voters "get to the polls in November" and cast their ballots for these Republican candidates from Coolidge down to the least; that the country be saved to its present common-sense era.

It is to be hoped that the Republican voters, both men and women, will revive old-time interest in the election this year. It is all-important that President Coolidge be retained as chief executive and the country remain in Republican hands; that the majority of the minor offices be filled with Republicans, and the country not be swayed with the demagogic doctrine of socialist orators and demagogues. Americans, decide, what they term Republican inefficiency and misdoing.

The future prosperity of the country is to be determined by the battle of the ballots in November. If we have a Republican president and a Republican congress returned, the country will continue prosperous; for the faith of the people and the financiers will be shaken by a change in administration; and locally applied, the establishment of a Republican headquarters here is to keep fresh in the minds of all voters, from now until election, of the importance of casting their ballots next month and keeping the country under Republican rule.

SHABBILY DRESSED MEN

For twenty years after the ruinous War for Secession struggling heads of families in the Southern States were lamentably shabby in dress, spending on their wives and daughters such money as they could afford for clothes. A similar, though probably less desperate, situation is now reported from war-impoorished England. In their own interests the London tailors are making loud outcries against the increasing shabbiness of the British man. "Everywhere," the tailors unitedly complain, "one sees badly dressed husbands accompanied by extravagantly dressed wives, and shabby business men dictate letters to stenographers wearing the latest thing from Paris." Presumably one reason for all this is that the average man is more indifferent, while the average woman must and will have clothes. Another reason, possibly, is that the shabbily dressed business man enjoys somewhat of reflected glory and looks upon his wife's fine feathers as a paying as well as a prideful investment. But, insist the London tailors, clothes with a man also are a "business set."

This is true, and it is also true that good clothes add something in the way of confidence, self-respect and pose. Nevertheless, if the Englishman of today, like the southerner of the generation gone is unable to do both and is compelled to choose, inevitably he will devote his spare money to the apparel of his wife and daughters while contenting himself with old suits or inexpensive hand-me-downs. In many cases the daughters especially will receive the preference owing to the recognition that to be attractively garbed is an essential to success as they look about for suitable future husbands. The London tailors are likely to sigh in vain until the old-time prosperity returns.

Now, list to the tale (and not from the ale),
Of a cat who ran under a freight train, whereat
The train was de-railed — the cat was de-tailed,
And a finish decreed for this tale of a cat.

Saved by Roosevelt's Idea of Square Deal

When Roosevelt was getting ready for his African trip various sportsmen friends, as a matter of course, volunteered suggestions.

"When you get to Nairobi," said one—a Mr. Blank, a happy-go-lucky, careless, prosperous cump, who had dived into the jungle and out again: two years before—"whatever you do, don't hire a guide by the name of W. He is capable enough, but not trustworthy."

The day Roosevelt reached Nairobi he inquired about this particular guide. He sent for the repudiated guide and got his side of the story, says the Milwaukee Journal.

Just as Roosevelt had divined, it was a mountain made out of a mole hill. The damning word dropped by Mr. Blank without warrant had left stark misery in its wake for the guide. After that he could get no employment from any hunter who came to Nairobi.

Roosevelt heard all this. By way of rejoinder he smashed his itinerary. He rearranged it over night to include a ten days' expedition never before dreamed of in that section of the country. He hired the Nairobi guide to take entire charge of the trip.

When the expedition got back in scheduled time Nairobi's house-tops heard from Roosevelt. He said: "That guide is the most intelligent, the most industrious, the most reliable and the most satisfactory guide I have ever had."

The rehabilitation of the wounded guide dated from this utterance and this act of Roosevelt's. Again the man began to be sought after by hunters.

Tongue Twisters That Have Become Classics

Some time ago there appeared in the British comic journal Punch a particularly effective tongue twister, which ran something to this effect:

A lady was walking down a country lane when she met a tinker. "Ah," she said, "I see you are copper-bottoming your pots." "Oh, no," he replied. "I'm aluminuming 'em, mum." As a tongue twister this is pretty hard to get, though perhaps the American form of the words is just a trifle more difficult to wrap one's tongue around: "I'm aluminuming 'em, mum."

There are, of course, many thousands of these traps for the unwary floating about. Here are a few. The test is, not merely to say them, but to manage to repeat them quickly, say a half a dozen times without getting one's tongue tied up in a knot.

Music of the Orient

Harsh and Strident

The idea as to what real music really is varies according to race and environment. Music of the Orient is apt to jar upon sensitive occidental ears. Take the question of drums as an instance. The playing of drums in European orchestras has reached a high standard of art, though it is rare that more than three or four are used. In a Burmese orchestra, however, the two principal instruments are one made of a series of drums called the seing-weing and a similar series of gongs called the krye or gongs graduated in size, the drums being played with the fingers and hands and the gongs with knobsticks. Besides these there are cymbals, tom-toms and castanets, the last-named being much larger than the European instruments and made of bamboo. Of wind instruments there are only a number of clarinets and one flute played by the leader or conductor. String instruments are not used, and there are also no brass instruments.

Pleasant for Auntie

Little Margaret was spending a holiday with her aunt in Cornwall. Now, auntie was a spinster, and not in the first bloom of youth. In fact, an unkind person had once been heard to refer to her as "old," and we believe the other word used was "cat." Anyhow, she was not young.

Auntie was determined to give her little niece a good time, and she arranged several pleasure trips in order to give Margaret a chance of appreciating the beauties of the Cornish scenery.

"When I take you to St. Ives I will show you the school that I went to when I was a little girl," promised kind auntie one day when they were out for a walk.

"Oh, auntie, is it still here?" asked the child, innocently. "I expect it's in ruins now, isn't it?"—London Answers.

Insect-Eating Plant

An insect-eating plant is the sundew, so called because of a shining sticky substance secreted by glands in the sunlight like a rare gem, says the Detroit News. By means of the sticky mess, the sundew attracts and entangles its prey. Then the edges of the leaf curve inward, forming a sort of stomach into which an acid secretion is poured to digest the meal. The portions which cannot be digested are later thrown out and the trap is set for the next victim.

The sundew seems to know when food is near, for if meat is placed close to it the plant slowly reaches out for it. If a portion is placed within a few inches of the plant the leaf will bend toward it until the tiny hairs enfold the delicacy and the sticky substance completes the grip.

Oldest Work of Fiction

"The Tale of Two Brothers," so far as anyone now knows, is the oldest existing piece of fiction. It was written 32 centuries ago by Eoann, a scribe of Thebes, who was librarian in the palace of King Maneptha, identified by some as the pharaoh who held the Israelites in bondage.

The tale which is written on 10 sheets of papyrus, appears to have been invented to entertain the oldest of the princes who subsequently ascended the Egyptian throne. This strange old manuscript now reposes in the British museum, where it is known as the "D'Orbiney papyrus."

Another old book, written more than a thousand years ago, mentions two breeds of poultry which are still being raised in China today.

History of Loving Cups

All racing cups are not necessarily loving cups. A loving cup is one having two or more handles, generally constructed of silver. The custom of the loving cup is traced back to the days of wassailing. It was continued after the introduction of Christianity. The monks called the wassail bowl the communion chalice, meaning "loving cup." The ceremony of drinking from one cup and passing it around was observed in the Jewish paschal supper.

What the World Is Doing

(As Seen by Popular Mechanics Magazine)

Count Ten and Then Pull String in Leap from Plane

Two thousand feet in the air, a man in a heavy canvas flying suit, crouched in the cockpit and edged his way along the wing of an airplane. Harnessed to his chest and back are two bulky packs. He hears the end of the wing, steadies himself a moment as he rises upright, waves one hand at the pilot, then calmly steps backward into space. As the body plunges downward his lips move rapidly, framing the words: One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten! At ten he jerks a cord at his shoulder and out of the packs billows a great silk parachute. As it fills with air, the speed of the falling man slackens, until finally he is drifting downward for a safe landing. To the beginner, the task of counting to ten while hurtling through space is the most difficult part of parachute jumping—and yet one of the most important. The interval is designed to make sure that the jumper is safely clear of the entangling wires of the airplane before he releases his parachute. The lower picture shows a pilot whose life was saved at McCook Field, Dayton, when an old German war plane which he was piloting broke up high in the air. The pilot leaped clear of the wreckage and landed safely. The picture, taken just after he reached ground, shows, in the lower left-hand corner, the tiny pilot parachute which is released first to pull its big brother out of the packs.

Hats Trimmed with Horses' Tails Latest Parisian Fashion

Trimmed with the tails of horses, women's hats were introduced recently as the latest creation of a famous French designer. The hairs at one end were wound tightly together into a cone shape and attached to one side of the hat, while the other end hung down in front over the forehead. Dyed in various colors, the odd ornaments were displayed by models during a fashion revue.

Preventing Sticky Counters

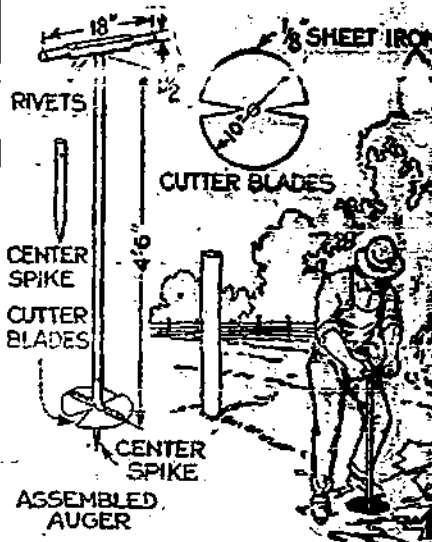

Under certain atmospheric conditions the glass or marble slabs on counters in banks and offices become moist and sticky to such an extent that customers have considerable difficulty in picking up checks, bills and other papers. One bank eliminated this trouble by keeping a can of cheap talcum powder at hand for just such conditions, and a little of it was sprinkled on the counter as the occasion arose. Thus papers and bills slid easily on the surface and could be picked up without difficulty.

A Serviceable Post-Hole Auger

A serviceable post-hole auger can easily be made by anyone. It consists of 4 1/2-ft. length of 1 1/2-in. pipe. Both ends are slotted with a hacksaw for about 1/2 in. bent over and flattened, as shown, that a handle and a blade can be attached. The handle is made of an 18-length of hardwood, about 1 1/2 in. thick, and is securely riveted to the bent end of the pipe. A 10-in. steel disk, about 1/2 in. thick, is riveted to the other end, shown. The blade is cut radially and the edges thus formed are bent to "bite" the soil. A spike, sharpened to a point, driven into the lower end under the blade and is held in this position by means of a rivet. An auger of this kind has been giving satisfactory service for almost two years and the initial cost of the material was only 5 cents, most of it found about the workshop.

Bulk of Aldebaran Is
40,000 Times That of Sun

Distance of the Hyades cluster from the earth is less than that of the Pleiades, estimates placing it between 150 and 200 light years from the earth, writes Isabel M. Lewis of the United States Naval Observatory in Nature Magazine of Washington. Aldebaran, the brightest star, is not a true member of the Hyades cluster, for it does not share in the common motion of the other stars and is only about fifty light years from the earth. Recent discoveries concerning this star tell much of its life and history. Aldebaran is a comparatively young and a comparatively cool star with a surface temperature of about 3,000 degrees centigrade, which is low for a star. It is on the up-scale of evolution, however, and so will gradually increase in temperature and decrease in size.

Aldebaran is one of the giant stars of the universe, and it has been judged that its diameter is over 30,000,000 miles and its bulk more than 40,000 times that of our own sun.

In spite of its great size, Aldebaran contains comparatively little substance. We could, to be sure, make more than 40,000 suns from it of the size of our own sun, but they would be far lighter and less substantial bodies than the sun.

Discovery of dark nebulous regions in the Hyades as well as in other parts of the constellation of Taurus has been one of the achievements of modern astronomy and also the more recent discovery that nebulae are in general dark, rather than luminous.

Birds Sing Again in Ancient Pompeii Garden

In the last days of Pompeii a picturesque garden with marble mountains and frescoed niches was one of the adornments of the city.

One entered through a carriage pavilion, the high entrance surmounted by a bell. Across the threshold a court in white and gold between two rows of pillars led to the spacious, sloping terraces, watered by a drowsy brook. The twitter of a thousand birds completed the pastoral landscape.

Excavators have resurrected this garden. The lawns are green again, as they were when Vesuvius erupted, A. D. 79. A silvery bell again peals for visitors; the murmuring brook wanders in through new conduits, and songsters, descendants of the birds who were singing about Pompeii more than 1,800 years ago, carol as they forsook the days made famous by Burru-Litton.

In Society's Realm

The Janie Allen Society of the Christ Lutheran church will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening promptly at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Clyde Brouse of Fallowfield avenue and Eighth street. All members are urged to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. George Konick, entertained at their home in Lincoln avenue last evening with a birthday party in honor of their son's first birthday anniversary. There were 14 guests present, the evening being delightfully spent in music and games. George, Jr., was the recipient of many pretty gifts. At the conclusion of the evening, luncheon was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Cooney Kewelkewics.

Misses Mary Latchem, Elva Majors and Irene Chester, were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower held in the parlors of the Elks club Monday evening, in honor of Mrs. Gordon Harrington, who before her marriage a few weeks ago was Miss Mary Welch. Twenty-eight of the honored guest's intimate girl friends were present, all of whom presented her with many beautiful and useful gifts. An enjoyable evening of bridge was spent followed by the serving of a dainty luncheon in the dining room, appointments being carried out in pink and lavender.

The nineteenth anniversary of the Westminster Guild of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church was fittingly celebrated last evening by the members with a birthday dinner served at 6:30 o'clock in the Sunday school rooms. The birthday cake bearing 19 candles formed the centerpiece of the table around which 30 covers were laid. The dinner was very much enjoyed. The regular business meeting followed the repast. Miss Charlotte Swan, vice-president, presiding.

A chapter of the lesson, "The Child and America's Future," was splendidly discussed by Margarette Gaut and Grace Gelder.

Sixteen members and one visitor were present at the regular monthly meeting of the Gleaner Class of the First Christian church, held last night in the Sunday school room. During the business meeting, with Mrs. Harry Geho, president, presiding, plans for a birthday social to be held in January in celebration of the 4th anniversary, were made. Fancy work and sewing was taken up during the social hour, and a dainty luncheon was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Charles Stroud and Mrs. James Reed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Andrew Scott of North Charleroi, in the form of a Halloween party.

American Collected
Hair of Famous Poets

The lock of Milton's hair which is being offered for sale by a New York rare book dealer for $1,000 is the tress which was successively in the possession of Addison, Doctor Johnson, John Hoole and Leigh Hunt, and was immortalized in verse by the latter, as well as by Keats and Elizabeth Barrett Browning. At last it found its way to America, but the States have long had first-hand knowledge of it. It was in 1857 that Bayard Taylor wrote a letter, which appeared in the New York Tribune, telling of a visit to Leigh Hunt in his modest cottage at Hammersmith. The poet showed him the hair in question.

"Could it really have been shorn from Milton's head?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"Touch it and you will have touched Milton's self," replied Leigh Hunt.

The visitor touched it, murmuring his host's own line—

There is a life in hair, though it be dead.

Leigh Hunt had then a remarkable collection of locks from the heads of poets and others, which Bayard Taylor described at the time. Milton's, he said, was a thin tuft of brown, silky fibers; Shelley's was gold and very soft. That from the head of Keats was bright brown, cutting in large Bacchic rings. Doctor Johnson's hair was gray, with a harsh, wiry feel, and Dean Swift's both brown and gray, but finer, denoting a more sensitive organization. The Charles Lamb tress was reddish brown, short and strong—Manchester Guardian.

Dutch Unfortunate in Colonization Ventures

The celebration on the continent commemorating the tercentenary of the foundation of New York recalls the fact that the great American city was originally a Dutch settlement. It was not until 1664 that it was captured by the British, and the original name of New Amsterdam was changed to New York.

Fate, indeed, has been unkind to the Dutch as colonizers. Not only did they lose their extensive settlements in New York state and Pennsylvania, but their colony at the Cape of Good Hope, founded in 1652, also passed into British hands, says London Answers.

Other instances of lost colonies could be given, especially if those which changed hands during or after the great war were included. But how many people realize that at one time Egypt was a French protectorate, and that before the advent of Clive the French power in India was greater than the British? The earliest European settlements in India, indeed, were Portuguese; but the Portuguese were driven out by the Dutch, and the latter—again unfortunately—by the British.

Staunchest Cars Built Today

At all vital points, you will find that metals and construction of the good Maxwell are the same as in cars costing three to four times as much.

In proportion to its weight and power, it is actually stronger than the most expensive cars built today.

That's a big thing for us to be able to say about a car of the good Maxwell price; and it is one of the Chrysler superiorities that put Maxwell so far ahead of its own field.

Yet it is only one of the sound, fundamental superiorities which make us proud to be factors in its production. You have probably heard about Maxwell pick-up—how in a flat 8 seconds, it accelerates from 5 to 25 miles an hour.

You are also probably acquainted with the fact that the simple device of a platform spring under the front end of the motor, combined with the balancing of reciprocating parts to the fraction of an ounce, practically eliminates any sense of vibration.

Are you aware, however, that all the way through the Maxwell chassis, you find chrome nickel or other high grade alloy steel for those parts which must stand heavy stress and strain—just as in cars of highest price?

The front axle, and all the parts on which depends the control of the car, are almost unreasonably over-strong.

A bull-dog for powerful pulling—this car; but it can't pull too hard for transmission and rear axle.

The steering knuckles, and the king pins upon which they turn, are of chrome nickel steel, heat-treated.

The thoroughness of good Maxwell strength is well illustrated by the frame, which is unusually deep, and braced by six stout cross members.

Good Maxwell strength, in a word, is a match for Maxwell performance and dependability.

All these are a part of that complete and unusual goodness which scores of thousands of owners declare makes the good Maxwell the most care-free and economical motor car they have ever possessed.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

FINE IMPRESSION

The production made by Universal of Victor Hugo's immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Majestic Theatre, has met with high favor, exceeding any big production within ready memory and promising a permanence most gratifying to all who have the welfare of the screen at heart. In massiveness and thoroughness this production is a revelation and gives truth to the pronouncement by able critics that it eclipses anything previously offered. It made an fine impression last night.

Hugo's story was charged with a dramatic power such as he only could wield. The period of the fifteenth century in France was one wherein drama filled to overflowing the daily lives of its people. The extremes in station of the Parisian people were wide as the poles. And the author's love of the abnormal in character building, together with his marvelous knowledge of human nature, resulted in the creation of characters that clash with almost unbelievable intensity.

He made "Quasimodo" a tremendous complex that while it was a dramatic triumph in shocking impressive-sympathy. If for nothing else, this story deserves true eminence through the drawing of this character. But, master-mind that he was, he made this character a protagonist of a seething love romance centered in the affection of an adventurous soldier to the girl of Louis XI for a little Gypsy dancing girl reared among the shadows of the Parisian underworld.

Tribute to Antwerp

Antwerp is so green and pleasant a city, writes Michael Done, that in no other port to which I have come in my journeyings have I found such a wealth of trees, growing down the length of the great streets of mighty and ancient buildings, making so kind a shade in the truly named Place Verte before the great cathedral whose tower, 400 feet high, watches the winding course of the river which has borne the keels of so many generations.

How China Is Colored

The coloring of the designs seen on china is very different from the color line originally applied. To fix the colors the articles have to be baked as many as eight or nine times, and at each baking the colors alter a little. A cup to be pink, black and gold in the finished state, for instance, would be painted brown, blue and a drill kind of brown tint, respectively.

Didn't Make a Hit

I was just a youngster, but had been hearing my parents tease my older brother about getting married, so I felt I knew all about it. So one day, while I was playing with a little girl I admired, I said, "Let's get married when brother does." At that she ran home, saying, "I'll tell mamma on you." I never repeated it to her.—Chicago Journal.

Chicago man has made a radio set out of an old mousetrap. He will probably get some cheesy programs.

WHAT CAN BE DONE

TO LESSEN THE TOLL?

What can be done to lessen the toll of killed and injured due to the amazing growth of automobile traffic—a toll of fatalities frequently greater in a month than the 1608 lost in the Titanic disaster? How can the present conditions—so serious as to attract the most careful consideration in many communities—be improved?

"Education," "more uniform traffic laws," "licensing of drivers and their control in a more drastic manner," "better highway engineering," "reduction of congestion in the larger cities by city planning and zoning," "closer attention to mechanical and safety equipment of automobiles" are some of the remedies offered by various groups.

Some time ago Secretary of Commerce Hoover was asked by several national organizations trying to improve conditions, to head a movement for greater co-operation and greater co-ordination of efforts in decreasing the hazards of traffic. These included the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, American Automobile Association, American Engineering Council, National Safety Council.

Plans were made for a thorough investigation of the problem from every angle. The recommendations developed from these studies are to be presented at a conference early this winter to which all organizations interested are to be invited. At the outset it was recognized that to attain the real objective, facts must be gathered from many sources and covering many subjects. Secretary Hoover invited experts in all of these subjects to serve on committees to make preliminary studies—motor vehicle commissions, state highway engineers, chiefs of police and traffic officers, members of the Association of State Highway Officials, the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, the Federal Bureau of Standards, Bureau of the Census and other agencies, technical association representatives, as well as from organized labor, industrial and commercial and professional organizations.

Committees were formed to collect statistical information; to study present traffic control measures, including the examination and licensing of drivers; to consider highway engineering in relation to safety; to discover the relation of city planning and zoning to safety conditions; the influence of insurance; the importance of educational programs; and to develop facts as to safety equipment of the motor vehicle.

The Committee on Statistics, with Director W. M. Stewart of the Bureau of the Census as chairman, studying the causes, location and frequency of accidents, found an amazing lack of uniformity in the collection of such statistics by states and communities. Replies to questionnaires indicated that many places have not wakened to the value of knowing where, how often, and why traffic accidents occur in their communities. Some states and cities do secure this information and use it in "spot" maps to locate danger points; while others have only the vaguest knowledge, apparently, of the true conditions.

Half-Knowledge

I am not one of those who believe that a half-knowledge of a subject is useless, but it has been my experience that when a fellow has that half-knowledge he finds it's the other half which would really come in handy.—Illinois Central Magazine.

Real Satisfaction

Don't whine if life pitches you some mean twists. Sooner or later your chance will come and when it does, put all your brain and brawn into your swing. There's no satisfaction to a real man like a score well earned.

Power of the Mind

When We Deteriorate

A man begins to deteriorate, to go toward failure, not when he loses all of his material possessions, not when he falls in his undertakings, but when he loses faith in himself, in his ability to make his dreams come true.

The Humphrey Radiantfire

What it will do--

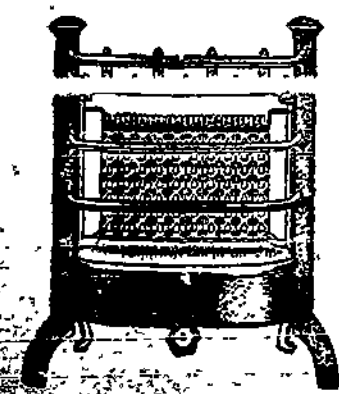

It will flood your room with glowing radiant heat in one minute after lighting.
If you are cold, chilly or wet, it will warm and dry you in one minute.
It will give you the greatest joy and comfort you ever had in your house.
If you are sick, it is better than a doctor in your house.
It will save firing the furnace for two months in the fall and spring.

It will save a ton of coal a month in the winter time.
You can run it two days for the cost of lighting the furnace once.
It burns ordinary City Gas, and costs three cents an hour to run—using natural gas less than a cent an hour.
It will give you 4 to 8 times more heat than any other Gas fire.
It is absolutely and positively odorless. Without dust, dirt or ashes.

Why it does it--

Because of the high flame temperature and intensified combustion made possible by our wonderful new safety burner.
Because this heat coming in contact with lace-like Heating elements becomes further intensified, making them glow and become intensely hot.
Because this incandescent mass throws out pure Radiant Heat waves all over the lower part of the room, warming you instantly.
Because of these things there are no un-burnt gases, therefore, no odor, and a perfect Hygienic fire and wonderful for a sick room.

Because of these things it is the most wonderful heating appliance in the world. No Dirt, No Ashes, No Noise, No Bother, Perfect Safety. Ever Ready.
Be sure to ask for the Genuine HUMPHREY RADIANTFIRE with the SUPER-COMBUSTION BURNER.
If it isn't a Humphrey, it isn't a Radiant-fire.
